DR. ROBERT W. LOVE, JR.

17th Pearl Harbor Memorial Program

— 5 December 2017 —

Please join us for our 17th Pearl Harbor Memorial Program. In years past our series has covered many aspects of the attack ranging from the attack itself, and its immediate aftermath in the Pacific, to diplomatic, economic and political factors leading up to the attack. This year our focus will be on the rationale for the attack which even its architect, Admiral Yamamoto, characterized in so many words as a “death warrant”. Dr. Robert Love, a professor and historian at the U.S. Naval Academy, will help us as we try to understand the motives and goals of the planners and whether it was “a bold stroke or senseless strategy”.

Dr. Love teaches recent military and naval history at the Naval Academy and is the author of the two-volume “History of the U. S. Navy” as well as scholarly articles on American and British naval history and diplomacy. He is also the co- author/editor of “The Year of D-Day”, “Pearl Harbor Revisited”, and “The Chiefs of Naval Operations”.
