THE PRESIDENT'S BOOK of SECRETS

DR. DAVID PRIESS

Everyday the President receives a report revealing the most sensitive intelligence reporting and analysis of world events: the President's Daily Brief, or PDB.

The Central Intelligence Agency's spies, the National Security Agency's listening posts, and the nation's reconnaissance satellites steal secrets for it, while America's enemies send undercover agents to try to unearth its classified content. No major foreign policy decisions are made without it.

Yet the PDB's stories have gone untold—until now.
