Shari G. Rozen is an experienced executive and leader in the Intelligence Community with over 20 years of experience in artificial intelligence, data management, cybersecurity, and critical infrastructure protection. Currently serving as the Chief Data and Artificial Intelligence Officer at the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI), Shari has a proven track record of leading teams in multiple domains in both federal and commercial environments.

With a strong background in compliance, risk management, and information security, Shari has worked with Fortune 500 institutions, the U.S. military, and federal government organizations to implement and improve core processes that reflect industry best practices.  Throughout her career, Shari has demonstrated exceptional leadership and management skills with a focus on driving innovation, improving efficiency, and promoting collaboration across organizations.