Daria Bahrami

Daria Bahrami is the Head of Policy at Dreadnode, where she shapes strategic initiatives at the intersection of offensive AI and cybersecurity. A recognized voice in the industry, Daria's writing and analysis have been featured in Fortune, War on the Rocks, and on the Safe Mode podcast by CyberScoop. She also authors the weekly newsletter Machine Speed, which provides intelligence on AI cyber policy.

Previously, Daria served as a technical advisor to DARPA's AI Cyber Challenge, leading engagement strategy for a global competition dedicated to automated vulnerability detection. Her background bridges the gap between technical operations and high-level strategy, drawing on experience as a Lead Cyber Threat Intelligence Analyst at Deloitte Global and earlier work in critical infrastructure resilience at the R Street Institute. She began her career facilitating strategic partnerships and multimillion-dollar agreements at the National Geographic Society. Daria holds a degree from Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service and maintains a Fellowship with the Military Cyber Professionals Association.