

Ashley Vaughan is Head of Government Relations at Dreadnode where she helps government agencies navigate the growing role of AI in offensive security.

She spent 8 years in the Intelligence Community, focused on network operations, iOS mobile exploitation, military drone streaming, among other high-profile initiatives. Vaughan was part of an elite team of network operators who founded a new branch that specialized in bleeding-edge alternative tradecraft, including the use of cryptocurrency. She worked closely with the US Congress and the US Department of Treasury to pioneer cryptocurrency use cases.

After leaving the Intelligence Community, she became Head of Security for Chainalysis Government Solutions and most recently was Chief of Staff at Pathfynder.