

John Lee works at IQT in the areas of AI, and Data & Analytics, helping to identify promising early-stage startups.

He has worked with companies in images, machine learning, AI security, data, and geospatial capabilities. He was previously at a global consulting firm leading human language technologies, AI platforms, and supporting the execution of AI strategies for Fortune 50 customers.

John has Bachelor's degrees from the University of California Berkeley and a PhD from the University of California Los Angeles.