DR. JANET BRESLIN-SMITH

SEX AND STRATEGY: WHY WE ARE ADRIFT IN THE MIDDLE EAST

Dr. Breslin-Smith travels across cultures, both bureaucratic and geo-strategic. Currently President of Crosswinds International Consulting, she has held leadership roles in the U.S. Senate, the National War College and in Saudi Arabia, where she focused on higher education and outreach to women in the Middle East. As a journalist she has written for the New York Times on Saudi extremism and is the co-author of The National War College: A History of Strategic Thinking in Peace and War. From 2009 through 2013 she resided in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia with her husband, Ambassador James Smith, where she developed extensive contacts with Saudi women leaders in education, medicine, business, banking, philanthropy, sports and on-line entrepreneurship. She lectures widely on strategy and culture, macro-economics and Islam, Women, Islam and Saudi Arabia and continues her outreach to Saudi women students studying in the United States. Dr. Breslin-Smith earned her PH.D from the University of California at Los Angeles and currently serves on the Board of Southern New Hampshire University and the National War College Alumni Association.
